Judge Orders Inquiry Of Tabor Condition As Retrial Waits

Either Edward R. Tabor, Hollywood business man convicted in 1935 of arson in the burning of a Huntington Beach apartment house, is faking illness to avoid coming to a retrial, or there was something irregular about his signature on minutes of a Los Angeles mining company, Superior Judge James L. Allen learned today.

Fred Ufer, El Monte bond salesman and secretary of the Sunbeam Mining company, of which Tabor formerly was president, today exhibited minutes of the company, bearing the purported signature of Tabor on minutes dated Oct. 26. That was the date of the last continuance of Tabor's trial, granted on reports the defendant was ill in bed.

Convicted in 1935

Mrs. Lella E. Tabor, wife of the defendant, told Judge James L. Allen today that her husband has not been out of bed since Oct. 26, and that she is not sure the signature is Tabor's.

Tabor, once convicted in August, 1935, with Jess Sibley on charges of criminal conspiracy and arson, was sentenced 18 months ago to San Quentin, but won a new trial on appeal. Every effort to schedule the new trial has been balked. Sibley was granted three years probation and sentenced to 60 days in jail.

Arsonists Sentenced

Both were convicted on testimony of Henry Eli and John Rose, who were convicted in 1932 and are serving penitentiary sentences of six and one-half years each for burning the building. The two convicts testified that Tabor, owner of the building, and Sibley, a tenant, paid them to set fire to the structure.

This morning, as Tabor was to have gone on trial before a jury, his wife reported him ill in bed. Dr. John Ball, Santa Ana, testified he examined the defendant two weeks ago and found him partially paralyzed. The symptoms, he said, appeared genuine.

Order Re-examination

Judge Allen ordered Dr. Ball to re-examine Tabor today and report in court tomorrow.

Tabor's attorney, Joseph F. Burke of Los Angeles, attempted to withdraw from the case today, saying his client has not paid him for the previous trial, but Judge Allen appointed Burke to represent Tabor at the hearing tomorrow "and maybe at the trial."

Preston Turner, deputy district attorney, and Robert Sandon, district attorney's investigator, produced Ufer at the hearing today.

change of quarters are: Capt. Don Wilkie, former government secret service agent and more recently renowned for his relentless attack on the marauding starfish; Major H. J. Schroeder, who was honored by being awarded the decoration of the Purple Heart; Herb Palmer, noted mathematician and co-architect of the New York Grand Central station; Gus Baldwin, who for 30 years was Asiatic contact man for the U. S. naval intelligence; Len Hardy, former shipbuilder from The Clyde, Scotland; and Ed Wilson, editor of the Laguna Herald, self-styled "newspaper person."

But it wasn't because of the six "bad boys" that Kingfish Cuprien has abdicated. It was because one of the two owners of the Sandwich Mill wanted to oust the six "bad boys," and the kingfish and other Ameners could meet again—if the six "bad boys" didn't come along to the meetings.

Nor for Publication

Just why the six were put in the "bad boys" class may be known, but not for publication. At any rate, it was said that one of the proprietors of the Amener Corner headquarters told Kingfish Cuprien one day recently that Amener Corner was "to be no more."

But, he is said to have confided confidentially, the Ameners could meet again—if the six "bad boys" didn't come along to the meetings. But no siree! The Ameners would stick together! So they pulled up stakes, took a long look at the pictures on the wall, the traditional Amener shield, and departed to new fields. And their grief at the sudden and devastating turn of events is not lessened by the fact that Frank Cuprien, the kingfish, has retired, shocked and hurt by the unprecedented occurrence.

What? No Cake!

Another touching angle to the story is that Ed Wilson, the "newspaper person," didn't get to see his birthday cake this year to the rest of the Ameners. Kingfish was a real disappointment. It was just four years ago when Wilson's wife baked him a nice birthday cake and he took it down to share it with the Ameners. Ever since, when a member of the Amener Corner has a birthday, he brings down a cake. A black cake for those that like black cake and a white cake for those that like white cake. And no one could forget, for his birth date was printed on the Amener shield.

Today the Ameners are hoping that the wounds in the heart of Kingfish Cuprien will heal, and that he will return to Amener Corner to add zest to the talk of cabbages and kingfish that flows in a steady stream at Laguna Beach every day from 4 to 5 p. m.

FILM STAR DIES BY OWN HAND

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—The words "suicide—case closed" were written beside the name of Ross Alexander, young featured film player, by police today—within a few days of the release of a musical motion picture which critics forecast would have gained for the actor a star's rating.

Alexander took his life Saturday evening, a little more than a year after his first wife, Altea Freile, dancer, committed suicide because of despondency over failure to find success in films. The actor was found shot to death in a barn, a pistol beside the body.

His second wife, a bride of three months, Anne Nagel, was reported near collapse at their Encino home.

Twenty-four hours after it had been a matter of public knowledge, the government announced the seizure of the Spanish merchantman Maria Junquera off the northern Spanish coast at noon Sunday by the German cruiser Koensberg. Officials said brusquely there would be "no details."

Basque government orders to its patrol boats to fire on any ship menacing Spanish merchantmen drew this reply from the Berlin Nacht Ausgabe: "Announcements like that, issued by a group of Bolshevik criminals at Bilbao, don't interest Germany."

To Reply Jan. 11

Meanwhile, the question of when—if ever—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler will reply to Franco-British pleas for a stoppage of volunteer departures to the aid of Spanish insurgents remained a mystery.

Der Fuehrer was at Dertchesgaden. Diplomatic sources believed he might give an indirect reply to the Franco-British communication when he addresses the diplomatic corps on Jan. 11.

There were, in fact, reports Herr Hitler had decided to "lecture" the diplomats.

Prior to the Maria Junquera capture, German warships in the Bay of Biscay had seized the Spanish merchantman Aragon and had shelled and beached the steamer Soton.

Put on Probation For Cafe Brawl

A cafe brawl two months ago is going to cause Bascom Combs no end of bother.

First, he's on probation for two years. If he violates that, he goes to jail for six months.

He has to pay doctor bills for D. B. Colbert, who appeared at Combs' assault and battery trial with two very black eyes.

He must pay $5 a month for the next two years to the Santa Ana justice court, beginning next month.

His brother, Hobart Combs, went free when the brothers appeared for sentence by Justice Kenneth Morrison this morning.

Britain Battles 'Flu' Epidemic

LONDON. (AP)—An influenza epidemic spread through the British Isles today with hospitals fighting to keep enough of their staffs working to care for the victims.

Some of London's largest hospitals reported some nurses had been afflicted as well as some other staff members.

Mrs. Rudyard Kipling was one of those under hospital care for "special treatment."

tendent Nat H. Neff, who supplied the trucks.

Previous reports, brought from the camp by the two adult leaders, had said the boys were in perfect condition and had plenty of food to last them for many days. Actually, they were down to their last two full meals when the bomber prepared to drop supplies this morning, and had been eating only two meals a day since last Friday.

Bread Almost Gone

Bread was almost gone at the camp, as was fresh meat, vegetables, butter, milk, and other staples.

Struggling through 20-foot drifts from the camp, the party of five finally reached the Mill Creek CCC camp Saturday night. The party included George Bassett, Dick Johnson, Jesse Wolfe, and Glenn Anderson of Fullerton—older boys who volunteered for the trip to bring word of the situation to the outside world.

Their return brought immediate action on the part of local authorities. Bassett and his brother, G. W. Bassett, Jr., Scoutmaster of Troop 23, immediately contacted Col. Wellington and Spurgeon, local Scout leaders.

Arranged for Plane

Wellington called March field, got permission to have a bomber drop food and medicine to the Scouts, and arranged for purchase and transportation of the supplies. Then he, C. L. Pritchard, Bassett, and Spurgeon set out for the mountains to return eight more Scouts, other older boys who yesterday afternoon had struggled through the same 18-mile hike.

Wellington left early this morning for March field, the army airport, with the supplies, including medicines from the county hospital and instructions how to treat the sick boys.

"We found the tractor had started out from camp to clear the road," said Bassett. "It was stuck in a big drift and abandoned. The other cars that got to camp are stuck, too."

Trucks, Cars Stuck

"When we got there, everything was covered with four inches of snow, but the buses and cars drove into camp. Later they were stuck there. If they'd been left at the main road, three-quarters of a mile from camp, we could have gotten out Wednesday night."

The boys arrived at camp Saturday, the day after Christmas. Sunday a heavy snow fell, bringing the total fall up to some four feet. Even up to Wednesday night, when another storm struck camp, the main road near the camp was open enough to be used, the boys said.

"Boy, this food tastes swell, Bassett remarked, lapping up a dish of pudding and several slices of bread from home."

Sickness, accident, and lack of water supply and electric light added to the hardships of the snowbound Scouts.

One boy fell last week while playing and broke his arm. Scout Executive Harrison White, in charge of the camp, set the broken arm and the boy was taken to civilization on a toboggan for medical attention. Another lad's thumb became infected as a result of a small cut—but no professional medical attention was available, although last winter and summer a physician was in camp to attend the boys.

When the 120 Scouts arrived at the camp, they found their water supply damaged. A small dam, used to store water for piping to the camp's tank, had burst. Emergency repairs lasted just long enough to fill the tank—and then the pipes froze.

Drank Melted Snow

Since then the boys have been drinking snow water, melted in large pans.

"Tasted awful," reminisced the boys. "Sorta like olives. It wasn't boiled, just melted. Some of it was the water that dripped off the icicles that hung from the roof."

When the water supply went out, so did the engine that supplied electric power to the camp. So

AILING PONTIFF HOLDING PEACE IS STRONGER FORUM TODAY

VATICAN CITY. (AP)—Pope Pius gained new strength today as pain in his left leg diminished, allowing him a good night's sleep.

The condition of the 79-year-old Pontiff, ill for a month with circulatory ailments and a weakened heart, was reported "unchanged" after a quiet week-end.

The office of Cardinal Pacelli, Papal secretary of state, arranged to issue an official bulletin this afternoon on the Holy Father's illness in response to demands for authoritative information from the sick-room.

Informed Vatican sources said the statement would describe the Pontiff's illness as "extensive arterio-sclerosis (hardening of the arteries) accompanied by weakness of the heart and pains in the chest," in which bursting of a varicose vein has caused an open wound.

Another Lecture At 'Y' Tomorrow

Another lecture on the subject, "The Dangerous Age in Men," will be given at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Y. M. C. A., it was announced today by General Secretary R. C. Smedley. Dr. Herbert A. Johnston, Anaheim, will be the speaker.

Regular "Y" classes are under way again, Smedley said. The women's swimming class will meet tomorrow and Thursday at 7 p. m. Miss Thelma Cotton is instructor. Women who want to learn to swim were invited to join the class.

The lights went off, and kerosene lamps were used sparingly to avoid danger of fires.

The snow was five feet deep on the level, and giant drifts towered some 25 feet above the ground in spots. Paths were dug between the 10 cabins.

Housing Crowded

Housing facilities were crowded. A number of boys slept on hard wooden tables in the camp's mess hall.

The two Scouts left in the mountains at the home of a year-around resident, Scout Executive Harrison E. White said, were Richard Starbuck of Fullerton and Royce Kauf-

MORE ABOUT SUPERVISORS

ley answered most of the queries, about which more will be published later.

The Journal believes the people who elected these men and pays their salaries are entitled to ask specific questions of their public servants and get specific answers. The Journal prepared a list of 10 major questions and submitted them to each member of the new board. These questions are on topics of universal public importance and interest. They are questions about which every public spirited, thinking voter has his own definite opinions.

Four Decline Flatly

Four members of the board declined flatly to answer these queries.

When they were campaigning to be elected, these officials gave the impression they were well informed on matters of public importance, that they were capable of deciding important issues and, in some cases, were able to pick flaws in the way the incumbents were handling these matters.

But now that they are in office they have nothing to say.

Supervisor West of Laguna Beach has prepared a program touching most of the questions asked by The Journal. It is understood he will seek to have this program adopted by the board as a whole.

West has been inclined to take the public into his confidence more than some other supervisors. But he is unwilling to make his program public before it goes before the board. Nor has he answered the questions propounded by The Journal.

If possible, he wants the board to endorse his program as a whole and does not want to complicate matters by revealing his hand prior to the presentation of the program. West's position on a number of the questions, however, is already well known.

John Mitchell of Garden Grove, seasoned official and able to take care of himself in political matters, smilingly declined to make his position known on these questions although he, too, has made himself clear already on many of them by his acts as a board member.

Willard Smith of Orange, equally experienced as a public official and equally as diplomatic as Mitchell, also left a blank space for his answers.

Riley explained with great care why he wouldn't answer the questions. In the first place, he said, he wasn't a supervisor yet. In other words he hadn't actually taken office. Hence, he said, he thought it would be unbecoming in him to state his position to the people on the issues which concern them so vitally.

In the second place, said Riley, he was not well informed to answer these questions. He explained this amazing answer by saying he was studying the various important issues and conferring with department heads

JAILED SEAMAN RETURNS HOME

NEW YORK. (AP)—Lawrence B. Simpson, American seaman who was detained in German prisons after he was arrested, he said, "for high treason, which is not liking the way Hitler looks," was back in New York today.

A small crowd welcomed Simpson in a downtown of rain as he arrived on the liner President Roosevelt. He refused to work his way over on the ship after he learned of the strike of seamen here.

Simpson, who was arrested in Hamburg in 1935, admitted at his trial to taking German language Communist literature into Germany.

He was sentenced to three years imprisonment, but was released upon request of American officials.

Thieves Get $300 Loot from Home

Burglars who cut a window screen at the H. A. Lutz home near Anaheim and escaped with $300 worth of guns and clothing were being sought by sheriff's officers today.

The burglary occurred Saturday between 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., Lutz told officers.

In order to inform himself to make wise decisions, Riley expressed the view that it would be wiser for him to refrain from answering now than to make answers which he might wish to change later in view of additional information.

Declines Interview

The supervisor from the third district, however, declined over the telephone to grant an interview, and without finding out what the questions were, declined to answer them.

And so Orange county's "grab-box" board of supervisors will meet tomorrow for the first time. What its policies are regarding these questions of public interest remains a mystery. The voters reached into a "grab-box" and pulled out a New Deal. What kind of New Deal it is they'll find out when the cards are dealt.

Approval or disapproval of West's program, in whole or in part, may establish the board's policy as a board on certain matters. How far it will represent individual opinions of individual members is one question. How far it will represent "concessions" on the part of some, "bargains" on the part of others, is another question.

That's up to the public to find out—if it can.

DOTS AND DASHES AND ONE OR TWO FLASHES

Winchelling: Ed Adams, blond wingman of the Dons' Southern California grid champions of '29, and Mrs. Adams (the former Clara Kate Owens of Santa Ana) are infatigable.

Adams coaches at Corvallis High school in Oregon.

Prediction: Fullerton will steal most of the thunder in Eastern J. C. conference basketball this year.

Arthur Nunn, the guy they call "Lucky" because he has the ability to produce fine gunshots every season, is blessed with a formidable array of melon-tossers.

Every conference opponent—Santa Ana, Riverside, Chaffey, Pomona, San Bernardino and Citrus—may feel the sting of the Yellowjackets.

Nunn's Hornets defeated Riverside in the playoff for the 1935 championship, but last winter Jesse Mortensen's Bengals won six straight battles and then outclassed Fullerton in the playoff which went with the single round schedule. The Swarm is sitting pretty now, with some well veteran material and promising newcomers, and is the solid pre-season choice.

Walter Leichtfuss, wily forward, leads the brigade of returning lettermen, which includes Ted Neja and Merritt Lambert, forwards, and Harold Newsome, guard. All are classy enough to make first string at practically any school in the district.

Archie Baker, 6-4 Anaheim star; Lee Woodward, towering Whittier center, and Fred Schell, classy guard, are the leading freshmen performers, and all are likely to wind up as starters. Woodward, who averaged 21 points in high school competition, scored 18 points against the Santa Ana Woolen Mills team.

STANFORD CERTAIN OF ERDHAUS, GRESCHNER

Fred Erdhaus and Bill Greschner, Santa Ana's all-conference end and safety who sparked the Dons to the southland title, and Coach T. Thornhill of Stanford will talk things over at a luncheon soon, 'tis said.

GOLDBERG GAINED 860 YARDS FOR PANTHERS

No wonder he was good! Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg, Pitt's fleet halfback who so deeply impressed the Rose Bowl customers, averaged nearly six yards per running play all season.

Official statistics for nine games showed he carried the ball 151 times for a total of 860 yards from scrimmage.

All of the other Pittsburgh backs combined ran up 1,671, so Sophomore Goldberg gained one-third of his team's yardage.

He should be a riot in his junior and senior years.

PITT ELEVEN ENTRAINS

PASADENA. (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh football team, its grid crusade to the Rose Bowl a success, prepared to return home today.

Leaving behind the records of a smashing 21 to 0 victory over the Washington Huskies in a triumph that wiped out the scars of three previous defeats at the Bowl, the Golden Panthers spent a busy morning in Hollywood before piloting on their coaches. They were luncheon guests at Warner Bros. studio.

Praises and apologies poured in from all sides as Southern California hailed Pitt's great machine. The praises were for the Panthers' work in the Rose Bowl last Friday, the apologies for slighting remarks bestowed when Pitt was invited to play in the annual inter-sectional classic.

The vaunted Huskies left for home last night.

LUTZE, BETH WILL SHARE SPOTLIGHT

Principals Will Battle In Three Falls to a Finish at 101 Arena

Predicting 1937 will see the shattering of all attendance records for big-time wrestling at the Orange County Athletic club, Promoter Sam Sampson tonight sends back Sammy Stein, former All-America griddler, and Indian Jules Strongbow, 285-pound Oklahoman, in a three-falls to a finish.

They clashed for the first time last week in a wild bout that ended with Stein being declared the winner on a foul.

Lutze vs. 'Wild Bill' In the wrestling battle, a 45-minute, one-fall match, Sampson has Nick Lutze, rated the biggest box-office magnet of the past year, returning after an absence of several months, to meet "Wild Bill" Beth.

The Beth-Lutze bout figures to come close to outshining the featured match.

Tonight Stein and Strongbow will settle their differences once and for all. The bout is not only billed as to a finish, but stipulates neither man can be disqualified, unless the "Stronghold" is used. Strongbow's illegal work usually is confined to punching and knocking.

Enraged following last week's battle in which Strongbow subjected him to severe kicking and punching after being pinned, Stein is determined to win with devastating flying tackles.

"I'll break the big bum in half," said Stein when signing for the rematch.

Coleman on Card

Lutze's return to local mats was probably will mean that many fans who followed his bouts here with Vincent Lopez, Chief Little Wolf and other topnotchers, will be out to welcome him and to help root him to a win over the notorious rougher, Beth.

Promoter Sampson announced he has tentatively signed Lutze for three more bouts early this season provided he wins over Beth tonight.

A strong supporting bill, showing Tiny Roebuck, the Haskell Indian, undefeated here, against Al Baffert and Bob Coleman vs. Luis Mayo, light-heavyweight champion claimant from Mexico, rounds out the four-bout program which gets under way, rain or clear, promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

Bitsy Grant to Retire?

Business Claims Giant-Killer of Tennis

ATLANTA. (AP)—Soon Bitsy Grant may give up his role of "giant killer" in the tennis world.

A veteran campaigner at 26, the tiny dynamite says he is seriously considering withdrawing from active competition on clay and grass.

He sums up his reason in two words: "Business pressure."

Grant is selling insurance and finds it similar in many respects to his type of tennis game.

"You've got everlastingly to keep hitting 'em," declares the young business man. "To let up would be to lose."

Davis Cup Second-Stringer He has been swinging a racquet ever since he was in knee breeches and his campaigns here and abroad are down as some of the game's most stirring episodes.

Grant after Grant tottered before his doggedly steady stroking. Yet he missed the thing he wanted most—a place on the American Davis cup "varsity."

He made the 1936 squad and participated in preliminary matches, but was omitted from the final four who played—and lost to—Australia in zone competition at Philadelphia.

At present he says his plans call for only three more tennis meets this winter and next spring—the Tampa (Fla.) invitational January 11 and Houston, Tex., and Atlanta meets in the spring.

Heretofore he has entered almost all the big meets.

Growing Old

"I'm getting along in years," says Grant. "I've got to settle down to the business of making a living."

He says until now he has divided his time between competition in two fields—tennis and business. "I've never had a vacation," he declares, "unless you call playing tennis a vacation. I don't."

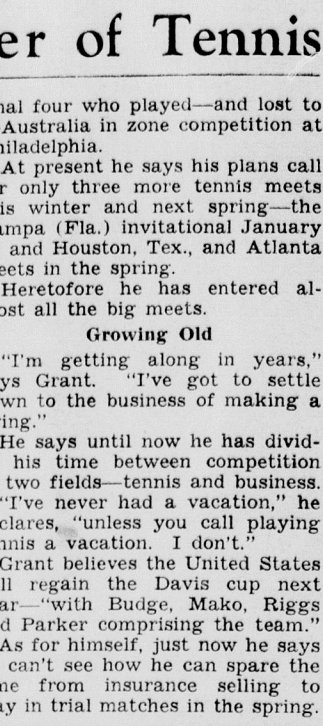

Grant believes the United States will regain the Davis cup next year—"with Budge, Mako, Riggs and Parker comprising the team."

As for himself, just now he says he can't see how he can spare the time from insurance selling to play in trial matches in the spring.

Preparatory to launching their Orange league schedule with Placentia in the Brea gymnasium Friday night, Ralph (Bill) Cole's Tustin Tilters will scrimmage Hod Chambers' Orange Panthers on the Tustin floor tomorrow afternoon.

Tustin, champion of the La Verne college and Southern Counties Invitational, again showed its true class by turning back a stubborn quintet from Chino, 24 to 15, at Tustin Saturday night.

With customary alertness, Cole's preps rolled up a 10 to 1 lead in the first half, and after that Chino never had a chance, although the invaders held their own in the final two quarters, 14-14.

Sam Francis and Larry Monroy, center and guard, were the big guns of the Tustin scoring with 7 and 6 points.

SYRACUSE SIGNS OSSIE SOLEM

While Parker made a fine show in the Eastern grass court tournaments and reached the semi-finals of the national singles, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, ranked third, did just as well in the nationals and performed brilliantly in the famous all-England tournament at Wimbledon.

The choice of Miss Marble, who made a remarkable comeback last summer after two years' absence from tournament play, came as a surprise, even though the San Francisco girl won the national title. Miss Jacobs, four times national champion, has been listed as the world's best woman player by such authorities as Fred Perry and A. Wallis Myers, the British expert.

She won the Wimbledon title at Manchester, Mass. In the "payoff match" of the national finals, however, Miss Marble came out ahead, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

The U. S. L. T. A. ranking regulations specify the national champion shall not arbitrarily be given the No. 1 position, but they also say the champions shall get "very generous" benefit of the doubt, and that middle and late season performances shall count more heavily than those early in the year.

Commenting on the decision of the women's committee, S. Wallis Merrihew, member of the men's committee, which passed on the women's list, said: "After all, there must be some reward for winning the national championship."

How They Ranked The "first 10" rankings, notable otherwise for the advance of young players in both divisions and the absence of Wilmer Allison, top ranking player of 1935, who retired from tournament play last summer, follow:

Men: 1—J. Donald Budge, Oakland, Cal.; 2—Frank Parker, Milwaukee; 3—Bryan M. Grant, jr., Atlanta; 4—Robert L. Riggs, Los Angeles; 5—Gregory S. Mangin, New York; 6—John Van Ryn.

Lewis Wetherell and partner, Vern Hughes, were eliminated in the semi-finals of the men's doubles by Carl Busch and Bernie Corbhan, 6-3, 7-5, in the California mid-winter tennis championships in Beverly Hills yesterday.

The doubles crown was won by Bobby Riggs and Joe Hunt.

Marble Listed Over Jacobs

NEW YORK. (AP)—The ranking committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association appears to have laid the groundwork for an argument that will endure an entire year in listing Alice Marble above Helen Jacobs in the 1936 women's rankings and placing Frankie Parker in the men's No. 2 spot behind Don Budge.

While the rankings, announced yesterday, won't become official until passed by the annual convention here in February, surprised comments already have been uttered. It is unlikely, however, any attempt will be made to change the order at the convention, although this is theoretically possible.

Grant to Third? While Parker made a fine show in the Eastern grass court tournaments and reached the semi-finals of the national singles, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, ranked third, did just as well in the nationals and performed brilliantly in the famous all-England tournament at Wimbledon.

The choice of Miss Marble, who made a remarkable comeback last summer after two years' absence from tournament play, came as a surprise, even though the San Francisco girl won the national title. Miss Jacobs, four times national champion, has been listed as the world's best woman player by such authorities as Fred Perry and A. Wallis Myers, the British expert.

She won the Wimbledon title at Manchester, Mass. In the "payoff match" of the national finals, however, Miss Marble came out ahead, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

The U. S. L. T. A. ranking regulations specify the national champion shall not arbitrarily be given the No. 1 position, but they also say the champions shall get "very generous" benefit of the doubt, and that middle and late season performances shall count more heavily than those early in the year.

Commenting on the decision of the women's committee, S. Wallis Merrihew, member of the men's committee, which passed on the women's list, said: "After all, there must be some reward for winning the national championship."

How They Ranked The "first 10" rankings, notable otherwise for the advance of young players in both divisions and the absence of Wilmer Allison, top ranking player of 1935, who retired from tournament play last summer, follow:

Men: 1—J. Donald Budge, Oakland, Cal.; 2—Frank Parker, Milwaukee; 3—Bryan M. Grant, jr., Atlanta; 4—Robert L. Riggs, Los Angeles; 5—Gregory S. Mangin, New York; 6—John Van Ryn.

Lewis Wetherell and partner, Vern Hughes, were eliminated in the semi-finals of the men's doubles by Carl Busch and Bernie Corbhan, 6-3, 7-5, in the California mid-winter tennis championships in Beverly Hills yesterday.

The doubles crown was won by Bobby Riggs and Joe Hunt.

GREENE PREPS TRIUMPH AT REDLANDS

Inlanders Fall by One Point, 22 to 21; Santa Ana Sophs Beaten

Defending prep champions of Southern California, San Diego's Hillers will storm Andrews' gymnasium here Friday night to open another Coast league basketball season with Santa Ana's Saints in Classes A and B games at 7 and 8 o'clock.

Coach Reece (Pinky) Greene's home guard put the final touches on a warm-up schedule with a 22-21 victory over Redlands, on the latter's floor, Saturday night.

The Saint sophomore and juniors lost the preliminary by the same margin, 14 to 13.

Towering Sam Lockhart, sturdy captain of the Saints, showed the way for the Saints with 12 points at his guard position.

Coach Greene started his new combination of Lockhart and Bob Clark at guard, Milton Smith at center, Bill Milligan and Mitsuo Nitta at forward. This may be the quintet that receives the first crack at San Diego.

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—If Howard Jones has been chosen by University of Iowa officials as the new football coach at the Hawkeye institution, Coach Howard Jones of the University of Southern California says he knows nothing of it. "My contract here has a year to run," said Jones.

Reports have been current that Jones would fill the vacancy at Iowa City left by the resignation of Ossie Solem, who goes to Syracuse university. Jones formerly coached at Iowa, going from there to Duke University and then coming to Southern California.

RACING

By FRED TURNER The third Santa Anita winter racing season is moving auspiciously towards its objective—the concluding three weeks when the greatest stakes and largest purses in the annals of turf history will bring out the most brilliant thoroughbreds in the land. Championships in all divisions will be determined. Starting on Saturday, Feb. 13, and until closing day, March 6, $180,000 in added money for stakes and some $130,000 in daily purses has been set up by the Los Angeles Turf Club. The outstanding events:

Feb. 13—The Santa Catalina, California All-Age Championship, $10,000.

Feb. 20—The San Antonio, all-ages from 3 up, $7,500.

Feb. 22—The Santa Anita Derby, $50,000.

Feb. 27—The Santa Anita Handicap, $100,000.

March 3—Juvenile championship, 2,500.

March 6—The San Juan Capistrano, $10,000.

The events will draw racing enthusiasts from all parts of the world. Reservations are already pouring in for the Derby and Handicap, although plans have not yet been approved by the California Horse Racing board. All box seats have been sold out for the season and will not be available and last season no reserved seats, outside of a section in the grandstand for the press and horsemen with season books, were sold, the seats being open to the general public.

The stakes and events now transpiring at Santa Anita are developing contenders in the outstanding fields being lined up. Top Row, Time Supply and Rosemont, who finished one-two-three in the last classic, are training but have not yet been to the post. In the Christmas Stakes A. A. Baroni introduced a candidate in Goldeneye and the eligibles for the hundred grander will be coming out each week to show their wares. An early feature has been the great King Saxon establishing his class.

U. C. L. A. CAGER ON SIDELINES

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Bill Robinson, sensational scorer for the University of California at Los Angeles basketball team, was on the sidelines today, with indication he will not see action in Friday night's game with the University of Southern California.

Robinson is recovering from a severe attack of flu, and it is expected team physicians will advise against his playing in the game which will open the southern division of the coast conference schedule.

And that suits me. The National league had its sixtieth birthday last February and we celebrated the anniversary with a series of 1876 ball games in each of our eight ball parks. The issuing of lifetime passes the year before and the old-timer reunions held in connection with each of the birthday parties revived in healthy fashion the traditional background of baseball. But I noticed one very significant thing in attending our anniversary games. Namely, none of the grown-ups, not even the old-timers themselves, seemed to be enjoying the occasion as much as the kids enjoyed it.

Younger in '37 So if we're younger out there on the ball field in 1937, we're just as much in line with the march of baseball as we were when we were re-living the annals of the past. Baseball to grown-ups is fundamentally the game we played in boyhood. So why shouldn't the lineups of our teams and the personnel in our grandstands emphasize the accent of youth?

Our sixty-first pennant race had plenty of highlights besides the anniversary games. We had a

OTHER CITIES BEGIN DRIVE ON 'GAMES'

Ban on in Long Beach, Hawthorne, Compton And Monterey Park

Law enforcement officers all over Southern California, and not only in Orange county, are starting to clamp the lid down on gambling.

They have followed the lead of Orange county officials in banning illegal marble games and other counter games. Here in Orange county, Sheriff Logan Jackson today was marking time waiting for police officers in incorporated cities to clean out the illegal machines after the sheriff's officers had taken care of those in the unincorporated area.

Five Cities Act

It was reported that there still were some marble games operating in cities of Orange county, but these were machines not operated by Henry Faust, who has padlocked all of his games, awaiting the outcome of the present clean-up movement. The sheriff has threatened to move in on city territory if city officers fail to act.

Today Hawthorne, Compton, Monterey Park and Torrance had joined Long Beach and other cities of Los Angeles county in the move to ban bingo, tango, marble, slot, dice and other counter games, and race betting establishments.

At Hawthorne yesterday Chief Vernon P. Craig ordered all tango and bingo games closed, and the three local palaces of chance did so. Several marble and pin games under the ban also have disappeared from business houses.

Deadline at Compton

Police Chief T. J. Potter of Compton gave establishments operating games of chance until 6 p. m. today to remove the marble machines and other counter games.

Chief of Police Otlich, at Monterey Park, has issued an ultimatum to all operators of gambling devices in the city. He ordered every illegal machine out of the city by night, "or else."

At Torrance a turf club opened in that city was ordered closed by Police Chief Clark, who called at the club. Marble games and slot machines also are under police ban in Torrance.

Codliver Oil Necessary To Children

By CLAUDE CHRISMAN, M. D.
The liver of the codfish contains elements so vital to our general well-being that the flesh receives only secondary consideration.

Many years ago it was discovered that the fat from cod liver possessed properties that few other foods afforded; that it was the most readily digested and absorbed of any of the fats; that all parts of the body needed this fat and that its consumption served many useful purposes.

It is only in the last few years, since vitamins and, to some extent, their action were discovered and where they exist were learned that we found out why cod liver oil accomplishes its purpose. It contained vitamins A and D in their most effective form.

These are the elements required to make good strong bones, and muscles; to promote the skeletal growth; insure good teeth and increase our resistance to infection of all kinds. By removing unnecessary elements, we now have all the good qualities of cod liver oil in concentrated form.

Now a few drops are more effective than two or three table-spoonfuls of the old emulsion.

Cod liver oil is so necessary for the promotion of sound growth that very few children over three months old are without their daily dose. This has made the pursuit of codfish more strenuous than ever. Discovery that the liver of the halibut and, lately, the tuna fish possess similar properties has spared a few lives of codfish.

Preston Foster has an interest in a tooth powder concern.

No, I didn't go to see the Tournament of Roses parade this year. I have gone up there a couple of times and didn't see it, so I figured this year I'd stay home and not see it from here, without the bother of crowds.

Couple of days ago found a nice calendar of 1937 under my front door, from Frank A. C. Fairley, the Irish insurance man. Made it one word on purpose. He's an Irishman and an insurance man and is always getting in a word about his business, so I just consolidated the two "men." Anyway, haven't figured out yet if it was a Christmas present or a hint that Christmas is past and we're in 1937. And I'm still wondering if anything was "incinerated" in the particular picture he gave me. It was of a boy and his dog.

But speaking of calendars, if anyone in the audience likes beautiful art calendars of the religious type, I'm not telling you how to get one, but I will say I got a dandy from the Westminster Memorial Park!

Yep, I like nice calendars with pretty pictures. If anyone else has any for me—well, I've never refused one yet. If you think I would, come right out cold and offer me one, and see. I dare you!

Pearson of Merry-Go-Round Learns Interesting Facts From Lion-Trainer Beatty

By DREW PEARSON

OF Washington Merry-Go-Round ROME—There was a mild-measured, not very prepossessing young man on the ship that carried the peregrinating Merry-Go-Rounder here. There was nothing political about him, but circus clowns or cabaret queens have a way of out-fascinating politicians.

The Merry-Go-Round can't resist handing the brass ring to a young man who earns his living by climbing into a cage full of wild animals twice a day. He is Clyde Beatty, and no one would ever guess from the unobtrusive way he lounged around the deck and seemed glad to keep out of people's way, that he is the greatest wild animal trainer in America.

Beatty is about 32 years old, not with the idea of buying a couple of "hybrids." A hybrid, he had to explain, is a cross between a lion and a tiger. He thinks they are as exciting as they're cracked up to be, and can't be trained to do tricks because they inherit the worst traits of both parents. But if the Munich zoo doesn't ask too much, he may bring them home anyway.

He is also severely tempted to go on to Singapore, where a tea planter has just caught a black tiger, which no one in circus history ever has heard of before.

Beatty is about 32 years old, not very tall, definitely on the slender side, weighs about 130 pounds, and looks as if a lion cub could knock him over. His voice is low and pleasant, with none of the harshness you might expect from one who wrings obedience from a cage full of jungle cats. His eyes—well, there seemed to be nothing unusual about them, but just to make sure he was asked whether it was true that a trainer's eye had a mysterious gleam which subdued wild animals.

"There's nothing to that," Beatty replied, "but the audience likes to think so, so we sometimes stage it for them."

KITCHEN CHAIR

The only thing the trainer really relies upon, Beatty confessed, is a plain kitchen chair, held with the four legs pointed toward the animal. The whip doesn't mean a thing, is just for show purposes. The revolver is in the same category, though the noise does scare them. But the four legs of a chair, when jabbed at a lion by an expert trainer, can keep him pretty well at bay.

"Animals are like human beings," Beatty explained, "chiefly bluff. You have to outbluff them. If one of them really decides to go for you, you haven't much chance. But they don't know it."

At least once or twice during every performance of Clyde Beatty's shows, a lion will go for him.

"You can tell by the expression on a cat's face whether he means business or not," Beatty said. "If you let them get away with it once it would be serious. But as long as they come at you only one at a time, there's not much to worry about. Fortunately they don't often gang up on you. That's the big thing in the trainer's favor. They hate each other more than they hate him—especially the lions and tigers."

They did gang up on Beatty, about two years ago, however, with results that he will never forget. He was badly mauled and spent several weeks in the hospital.

LUST FOR BLOOD
Animal training in Europe differs considerably from that in the United States. European trainers will spend two or three years working with lions until they are as docile as kittens. Beatty spends from three weeks to two months.

That is because American circus audiences like an animal featured with raw meat. The nearer the trainer comes to being eaten alive, the better the show is. Not many of Beatty's cats are born in captivity, most of them coming fresh from the jungle.

"We try to train a cat in about a month," Beatty explained, "but if the show is ready to leave winter quarters and we haven't finished, we stick them in the act anyway. They learn a lot just by going through the act with the other cats."

Beatty trains lions and tigers one at a time and works on it only about 15 minutes at a stretch. But this is repeated three times a day. To train them for longer periods tires them out. Usually Beatty lets an animal develop its own tricks; that is, he finds some particular thing which the animal does of its own accord and then he perfects it.

LION'S MOUTH

Regarding the stunt of putting his head in a lion's mouth, Beatty said:

"No, that's old stuff. I gave that up long ago. There's nothing to worry about if you have the right lion. It's like wrestling with a lion—though you never can tell when they will turn on you."

"The best wrestling lion is in Hollywood. Wrestling with it is like playing with a child."

He admitted, however, that he once wrestled with a 500-pound tiger in Hollywood that deliberately bit his shoulder. But he didn't seem much concerned about it, explaining that it would have been worse had he not seen what the tiger was going to do and pulled his shoulder back.

Beatty is amazingly modest about whatever prowess he may have with his big cats. He says that the main thing is getting used to them. He began at 16 as a cage boy. His job was to clean the cages and feed the animals. Gradually he came to understand them, and that was all there was to it.

Mrs. Beatty also is a modest and delightful person. She used to be an aerial performer, then helped put the elephants through their tricks. This was too tame, however, so now she helps her husband.

She once adopted a lion cub as a pet but gave it up because it got unruly. Now she does have a setter, of which she is fond. Once also, the humane society in Topeka, Kan., gave her a cocker spaniel, but it had a bad temper. Mrs. Beatty liked it, but whenever Beatty came around, it snapped at him.

"I had to give it away," she sighed. "It was too tough for Clyde."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Chief owner of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey is the National City bank. One of the champion circus fans in America is Congressman Maury Maverick of San Antonio. He knows almost every important trapeze performer, clown and animal tamer in the country. . . . Chief problem of the circus these days is finding adequate grounds for the tents. Cities are growing up so fast that real estate near town is getting scarce.

Another problem is the rabble of "trailers" that travel with the circus but are not a part of it. These include not only hot dog and ice-cream vendors but gamblers and petty pickpockets.

Once the summer's traveling schedule is fixed, this retinue travels by motor with the big top and there is nothing the circus management can do about it. . . . Hardest animals to raise in cap-

SLAYER OF AGED WOMAN DIES

BELLEFONTAINE, Pa. (P)—Jacob

Gable, calm and quiet, died in the electric chair early today for the murder of 79-year-old Mrs. Harriet Goldstein because she saw him rob a candy store.

The 21-year-old resident of Johnstown made no statement on his slow walk from his cell to the death chamber.

Counsel for Gable had declared he said the state was "doing me a favor" by refusing to commute his sentence.

The state termed Gable a "fear" slayer, and contended he beat Mrs. Goldstein with a door-stop and iron because he believed she would tell officers of seeing him leave a confectionery near her home.

They cost about $10,000 apiece. Elephants usually cost around $3,000, but the price is down now because so many circuses have gone into bankruptcy. Elephants live for years in captivity but seldom breed. . . . There is almost no drinking among circus performers on the job. Many do not even smoke. . . . One of the biggest items of circus expense is the transportation bill paid to the railroads. . . . Every winter, circus wagons have to be taken apart and rebuilt after the wear and tear of the summer. About 200 men are employed by Clyde Beatty's show doing this and taking care of winter quarters.

Simple Meal Good for Rush Season

By JUDITH WILSON

When you are planning a simple supper during the busy pre-holiday season, occasionally plan to have a hot dessert for the main course. A thick cream soup such as potato or green split pea or a fish chowder, a generous salad and the dessert will make a substantial and satisfying meal for even the hungriest of families.

You will like to serve these recipes when simple one-course bridge or party refreshments are wanted.

Fruit Omelet

Separate 8 eggs, beat the whites until stiff but not dry. Beat the yolks until thick and light in color. Add the grated rind of 1 orange, 1-2 cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 3-4 teaspoon salt to the egg yolk then fold into the beaten whites. Pour the mixture into a hot greased skillet or omelet pan. Cook over low heat until the omelet is puffed and golden brown on the bottom. Bake in a moderate oven until the omelet is firm—about 5 minutes—then spread with 1-2 cup puréed dried apricots. Loosen from the sides of the pan with a spatula, then cut partly through at right angles to the handle of the pan. Fold over and dust generously with powdered sugar. Serve the minute you take it from the pan. Five servings.

Girls: Here Are Tips on How to Get Your Man

By M. E. PLUMMER

NEW YORK.—Advice to young women who would like to have a proposal of marriage:

"Wear a white evening gown."

"A woman always looks more helpless in white than she does in color, and it's that helpless air which makes men propose," said Edith Marie Reuss today.

Miss Reuss, a pretty blonde, 27, the wife of a lawyer, is a color consultant to industrial firms and has learned a lot about the way people react to color.

She said American men "always associate white with fragility and desirability—especially in moonlight."

"A blonde," said Miss Reuss, "need never expect to be proposed to in a red velvet dress." Her explanation was that men who really like blondes in red are playboys who prefer to stay bachelors. "The other men," she said, "feel overwhelmed and a little scared by blondes in red."

She believes that the color of necktie a man picks is a good index to his character.

"The men who pick red," she said, "are flirts and lady killers. They gravitate to red ties like a baby to a fire engine."

"The man who likes navy blue ties usually has a family of five, and his wife's sister lives in his house."

"Men who like dark blue ties are perfectly safe."

Wine is one of the best colors women can wear, she said, and purple "one of the hardest, because it ages women."

And finally—"There's nothing like a pink linen frock in summer to make men romantic."

Pretty Hands Needed For Beauty

By JACQUELINE HUNT

Of all the things that men admire about a pretty woman, lovely hands are the most important. Friendly, sparkling eyes and laughing lips may capture his attention but it is to your hands he turns when he wants to find out all about you.

Your hands tell what type you are and what you do—whether you typewrite or sew or plant a garden. They tell if you are young, or if you are getting oldish—or careless. Since they are so revealing you should see that they give others the right impression about you.

Men will not criticize the size or shape of your hands but the way you use them. Of course, they expect your fingernails to be neat and well cared for and your skin smooth, but more than that they want your hands to be poised and graceful. Nervous hands, exaggerated gestures or a little finger thrust into the air like a snake about to strike are as irritating to a man as a silly giggle.

You cannot hide your hands now that gay nail polishes and charm bracelets are almost a rule, so make them something that you are proud to show off.

Chandler's Policy

—of—

Modern Merchandising For 1937

Out with the old and in with the new. Old, obsolete merchandising methods must make way for up to date, modern ideas.

Chandler's have gone through a period of reorganization during 1936, and have emerged with some definite ideas for future performance. These plans are based upon sound merchandising principles.

FIRST—

Abolition of Store Wide and Periodical Sales

We are convinced that every customer should be offered the same PRICE ADVANTAGE. In other words, we do not ask more for merchandise in January than we intend to SELL it for in February. There will be no ASKING PRICE, only a selling price. Merchandise will always be marked at the lowest possible price.

SECOND—

No Seconds Will be Offered For Sale

We will not buy undesirable merchandise at discount prices to be offered as BARGAINS. Our experience has been that factory CLOSE OUTS and JOB LOT merchandise is definitely undesirable.

THIRD—

Discontinued and Slow Moving Merchandise

No buyer can be 100% perfect in the selection of merchandise. Occasionally pieces will come into our store that will have to be disposed of at less than market value.

This merchandise will be reduced in price and plainly marked to show the reason for the reduction. There will be no CLEARANCE SALES of store-wide magnitude.

FOURTH—

We believe this plan to be sound and fair to all. Investigation and honest comparison will convince you that Chandler's prices are RIGHT. Quality furniture CAN be purchased at Chandler's at reasonable prices!

'FOLLIES' TO MAKE BOW ON KVOE

Most Popular Variety Show Scheduled for 8:30 Tonight

A variety show that's been tickling the funnybones of Eastern and Midwestern listeners for many months reaches the coast tonight for added chuckles, when the "Crosley Follies" makes its debut from KVOE through the nationwide Mutual Broadcasting system.

A hint of what is in store for listeners tonight was heard on the Mutual dedication program last Tuesday night when a special edition of the Follies was heard from WLW, Cincinnati.

The galaxy of entertainers to be heard on the show includes Phil Davies and his orchestra; Lang and Squires, Ellis Frakes, Ray Shannon, and "The Smoothies."

'Drums' Locale Is Darjeeling

Darjeeling, India, reputedly one of the strangest cities in the world, will shortly become the scene of action in "Drums," the nightly adventure serial, starring William Farnum.

In the current episode, broadcast by KVOE and other stations of the Mutual-Don Lee Broadcasting System from 6:45 to 7 o'clock tonight, the Lawrence family sets out from Calcutta for the hill town at the foot of the Himalaya mountains. It is in Darjeeling that the British government makes its summer headquarters when the heat of Calcutta becomes unbearable.

Last traces of the long-missing brother of Philip Lawrence came from Darjeeling; hence the trek of the entire family to this quaint metropolis in search of clues. In addition to Farnum, the cast includes Myra Marsh, Sally Creighton, Charles Carroll and others.

Garden Secrets

By Willis Cadwallader of Blanding Nurseries

"How calm, how beautiful and how cool—
How like a sister of the skies,
Appears the broad, transparent pool

That in this quiet forest lies—"
—Victor Hugo.

What is more inspiring than a pool set in the garden scheme? It makes no difference how small it is, a pool seems to add a touch of quiet and restful beauty.

It is not necessary to be without a pool because of lack of space. If there is no available room for a moderately small pool, a half barrel or a tub may be used.

Sometimes the effect of the very small pool is spoiled by overcrowding the plant material. It is well to allow about two-thirds of the pool for the leaf area. The difficulty in handling these small pools is the planting about their edges. The pool should harmonize with the rest of the garden and the architecture of the house.

The Garden Pool
If a half barrel is used, the inside must be free from oil and grease. A good way to clean it is to pour kerosene on the inside and set fire to it. It would be well to paint the outside with tar to preserve the wood.

A depth of at least two feet should be allowed for the water when considering pool construction. Most waterlilies and water plants like a soil box two feet square and one foot deep.

If tubs or small pools are to be used, cover the bottom of the pool with dirt and then add about an inch of clean sand to keep the pool clear.

A good mixture for the soil for waterlilies is one part of well-rotted manure to three parts of soil. Under no circumstance should fresh manure be used because of fermentation that is detrimental to the growth of waterlilies. Bone meal added to the soil makes a good mixture. This soil so mixed should be good for two or three years.

Waterlilies are gross feeders and should be fertilized. To accomplish this a good application of bone meal may be broadcast over the surface of the water where it will quickly sink into the soil and decompose gradually.

The nymphaeas and nelumbiums like about 12 inches of water. Those suited to the tub garden are Nymphaea odorata minor, N. pygmaea and N. Robinsonii.

There are semi-aquatic plants that will thrive in from two to six inches of water. A few of these plants are variegated sweet flag, white arum, calla lilies, water fern, water taro, umbrella palm, Egyptian paper plant, water hyacinth, water snowflake and water poppy.

Good plants for marginal planting are Japanese iris, hemerocallis, hibiscus, helianthus, hardy asters and many others. A number of ornamental grasses and bamboos are also good for marginal planting.

Nelson Eddy Thrills Santa
Ana Music Lovers in First Of Musical Arts Concerts

Santa Anans thrilled to the voice of Nelson Eddy Saturday night when the noted concert radio star presented an interesting program of classical and modern songs in the auditorium of the local high school.

Choosing his selections from the French, the Russian, the German, and the English, Eddy proved himself not only the talented singer popular with his radio audiences but also an accomplished linguist, losing none of his fine enunciation powers in his handling of other languages than his own.

That he is an actor as well as a singer, also, was given evidence in the folk songs and selections of lighter vein which he worked in among his other numbers.

With the slow, dreamy measures of "Bois Epais" from "Amadis" by Jean-Baptiste Lully, Eddy opened his concert, which was rounded out in various moods until the closing song of a devotional character, "My Parting Gift," by Elinor Remick Warren, running the gamut of emotions in a well-chosen program.

Powerful interpretation of Faurer's "Gloire a Vanna," from "Monna Vanna," concluded his French group, and four Russian melodies followed, sung in English in manner appropriate to the country represented. The group included "Say Not Good-Bye" by Sergei Rachmaninoff, "The Old Corporal" by Alexander Dargomizhsky, "Child's Evening Prayer," an especially delightful piece of interpretation, by Modest Dargomizhsky, and "By the Walls of Kazan," Varlaam's song from "Boris Godounoff" by Modest Moussorgsky.

Two encores followed this group, "Song of the Flea" by Moussorgsky, and a Russian folk song in Russian.

Theodore Paxson, who played Eddy's accompaniments through the entire program, was a worthy partner of the singer, his artistry appearing in all of the vocal numbers and in his own solo "Ballade in F Minor" by Frederic Chopin.

His talent also extends to composing, and Eddy chose as an encore later in the evening one of the former's recent pieces, a German song of great beauty.

From the German composers, the singer chose his third group, singing first Otto Fleischmann's "Fruehlingsreigen," which brought out the great power and flexibility of his voice; then "Auf ein altes Bild" by Hugo Wolf, "O, Was Ich Mich Betruebe" by Smetana, and "Zur Johannisnacht" by Edvard

HALT FLOODS WITH SOIL PROJECTS

El Toro and La Habra
Plots Part of Giant
System Over U. S.

Soil and water conservation practices being demonstrated in two projects in Orange county point the way to preventing floods by control at the source, H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, declared today in his annual report to the secretary of agriculture.

Projects at El Toro and La Habra in Orange county are part of a system of 143 demonstration areas in the United States. During the year the number jumped from 47 to 143, and the area under cooperative agreements increased from 4,000,000 to 7,000,000 acres.

The effectiveness of soil and water conservation at flood sources in minimizing floods, Bennett says, is substantiated by several established facts:

1. Flood loads are due in large part to rapid surface run-off of rainfall or melting snow and the quick concentration of this water in stream channels.
2. The upland soils of a watershed constitute a storage reservoir capable of absorbing or retaining enough water to prevent or at least greatly reduce critical flood crests in the lower drainageways.
3. Proved and adaptable procedures to hold water in the soil are now available.

More than 430,000 acres in the soil conservation demonstration projects have been strip cropped. Almost 200,000 acres have been contour furrowed, and more than 900,000 acres have been tilled on the contour. Approximately 900,000 small dams have been built to check the run-off of rainfall and the spread of gullies.

OFFICERS STOP
SUICIDE LEAP

PASADENA. (AP)—Oscar Lewis might be listed as another victim of Pasadena's "suicide bridge" today—but he stopped to write a note.

Officers Sid Hughes and Al Dixon reported they stopped their car to investigate a parked automobile on the bridge. They said they looked in the car to see Lewis drop a note on the floor which read: "The owner of the car is down below."

The man was taken to the police station. The officers said he told them he had quarrelled with his wife. A few hours later, the wife called for her husband and took him home.

Dead Man Joins Drinking Bout

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The sordid story of a drinking spree with a dead man as a companion was investigated by police today as they questioned four men, residents of the frost-bitten, tumble-down shacks of jungle town on the banks of the Los Angeles river across from Griffith Park.

The four men held, Walter Anderson, 58; Everett Sorenson, 40; O. C. Howe, 41, and Clifford C. Browne, 49, were taken in custody for questioning after the finding of the body of Thomas Goss, about 50 years of age, in one of the shacks. The men admitted they had been drinking with Goss until his death. Lieutenant Aldo Corsini said, and said they simply shoved the body aside and kept on drinking. A telephone lineman reported the death.

PUBLISHER DIES
SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—Jerome A. Hart, 52, editor of the San Francisco Argonaut from 1891 to 1907, publisher and author of a number of books, died here last night. He was a native of San Francisco. His books included "The Golconda Bonanza" and "A Vigilante Girl."

O'Neill underwent an appendectomy last Tuesday and his wife is recovering from a severe cold, physicians said.

Condemnation of Land
Near Chino Begun
By the State

Orange county citizens were glad today that it was in San Bernardino and not this county that the state has started condemnation proceedings to acquire a site for a new state prison for first offenders.

The state today had launched condemnation proceedings to get a site between Ontario and Chino for the prison farm, which state authorities previously had wanted to locate near Costa Mesa. Only after bitter protest from many organizations and officials was Orange county able to keep the prison out of this locality.

Start the New Year—
In the Old-Fashioned Way!

We're old fashioned, we've been told, when we quote Ben Franklin.

Well, we are old fashioned then. For we DO believe in the same principles of old time honesty that motivates so many of the quotations we prize today.

But our belief is not entirely based on our own opinion. We have seen too many examples of the wisdom of his words to treat them lightly. For many years we've seen families save . . . and earn by saving. We've seen them care for their pennies . . . and their pennies, turned to dollars, care for them.

Maybe we are old fashioned . . . but we still believe in the policies laid down by Ben Franklin.

"Cupid's Edition" of Newspaper Reveals News of Betrothal at Sunday Tea

News Is Told In Unique Manner

Date of Nuptials Not Set by Miss Powell And Paul Wright

Unique front pages of a newspaper with the news bannering in big letters across the top, revealed the betrothal of a popular young Orange girl, Miss Miriam Powell, and Paul Wright, Santa Ana newspaperman, yesterday when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Powell, entertained in the afternoon at their home at 172 South Pepper street, Orange.

Assisting her mother in receiving in the flower-filled living-room of the home, the pretty bride-to-be, who is a talented pianist and a student at Occidental college, wore a formal afternoon frock with red blouse and black skirt.

As the guests arrived, they were presented with the newspapers which announced in bold letters the addition of a new "heart throbs" feature to the sports department.

Conducted by Mr. Wright, Miss Powell's fiancé, the story continued with details of the plans of the couple, who will be married some time in the near future, no definite date being set as the "newspaper merger," as announced.

Pretty Tea Table
Red tapers, poinsettias and snapdragons with silver leaves made a lovely centerpiece for the lace-spread table which was set with silver service for the tea.

Presiding at the tea and coffee urns during the reception hours were Miss Powell's sister, Mrs. Oswald C. Ulrich (Cora Alice Powell) of Anaheim, and a college classmate, Miss Thelma Clemens of Monrovia.

Those signing the guest book at the tea were Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hulsey, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fisher, Mrs. Marah Adams, Mrs. I. A. Wright, Al Wright, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Townsend and Jacqueline, all of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Ulrich and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Busch of Anaheim, Miss Dorothy Flintham of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. ## Church Group In Holiday Party

Mrs. J. L. McBride's home at 1110 Spurgeon street was the setting Thursday night for the annual New Year's Eve party of the Estelle Daniels chapter of the Presbyterian church missionary society, 43 of the ladies gathered for the good time.

Part of the evening was spent in discussing latest news from the mission field in Chile in which Miss Estelle Daniels, for whom the chapter was named, is engaged in missionary work. Miss Daniels is a sister of Miss Meta Daniels, former local high school teacher, and is well known here.

On this occasion, also, there was the added pleasure of an exchange of useful gifts between the members in the Christmas surroundings provided by the tree and Yuletide decorations still in evidence.

Mrs. McBride had arranged a very lovely buffet supper table in blue and silver, with garlands of silver leaves and blue balls, and a tiny silver and blue tree, on the table. The guests celebrated the advent of the new year with a supper at midnight.

Mrs. Leon W. Lauderbach and Mrs. W. W. Anderson poured, the guests helping themselves from the goodies on the table.

Five of the husbands kept each other company while the party was in progress, meeting at the Lauderbach home for a game of monopoly and a midnight supper.

Co-hostesses with Mrs. McBride were the Mesdames Ethel Woodman, Martha Withal, Luella Green, Edith Osborn, Edith Reilly and Miss Effie Douglas.

Finches Are Open House Hosts

The glow and crackle of an open fire, informal comfort, and pleasant conversation characterized a post-New Year's open house yesterday afternoon at which Mr. and Mrs. Braden Finch were host and hostess in their hillside home on Panorama Heights.

The Finches received from four to seven in the afternoon, and Mrs. Finch was charmingly assisted in serving holiday egg-nog, little sandwiches, and hors d'oeuvre of all kinds by her sub-club daughter, Miss Frances Finch, who has, until Christmas, been at school in Memphis, Tenn. She was to enter her first year of high school today.

Among those invited to share in their hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Stephenson, Col. and Mrs. M. B. Wellington, Mr. and Mrs. K. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Flint, Thomas Clem, Mrs. Walter Guild, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guild, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Emison, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Brad Hellis, Mrs. Ada Hellis, Miss Gertrude Hellis, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Ellstrom, Mr. and Mrs. John Scripps, Miss Lucinda Griffith, Robert Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Horton, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Emrys White, Mr. and Mrs. Milan Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Loyal King, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bodenhamer, Dr. J. P. Boyd, Miss Rosa Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ellwanger and Mr. and Mrs. James Irvine.

MISS STAPLES TO BE 1937 BRIDE

Taking her place among the brides-to-be of 1937 is Miss Mildred Staples, daughter of O. H. Staples of Irvine, whose betrothal to Robert D. Windolph of Arizona was made known at a lovely open house affair for her Beta Sigma Phi sorority sisters during the holidays.

Gathering for their annual Christmas open house this year at the home of Miss Staples' aunt, Mrs. John Cook, in Anaheim, the chapter members were greeted with the surprise news which was told on the front page of the guest book in which they signed their names.

Receiving with the charming bride-elect, who wore a gown of wine red velvet, were Mrs. Cook and Miss Lillian McDonald, and sorority sisters assisted in the other duties, Miss Lena May Wilsey helping in the decorating beforehand and the Misses Eleanor Siemson, Marjorie LaBrucherie and Dorothy Lindgren with the serving when a buffet supper was spread for the group.

Announcement of the betrothal had already been told to Kappa Epsilon Chi sorority sisters at Occidental college two weeks before when the bride-elect passed the box of candy at a campus meeting of that group; and had been revealed to a family group of 30 on Christmas eve at the Staples home on Irvine ranch. No definite date has been set for the nuptials.

Miss Staples, who is a teacher in the Tustin elementary schools, is a graduate of Tustin Union High school and of Occidental college, and Mr. Windolph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edd Windolph of Orange, has a position in Arizona and was at home for the holiday season.

attending the Rose parade Friday morning in Pasadena. They drove away by way of San Gabriel where Miss Lucille West, a teacher in the Orange schools who had gone home for the holidays, joined them, and after the pageant the entire group returned to Miss West's home for a New Year dinner.

Louise Latimer, new to the movies, is one of Hollywood's smallest actresses. She wears a size 8 dress.

Mary Stoddard Poor Family Longs for Friends Who Appreciate the Good Things in Life

By MARY STODDARD

We are born alone, and we die alone. From the cradle to the grave there is one person we must live with morning, noon and night—ourselves. That is why I have said so many times that "happiness must come from within." Some of the most truly happy persons I've ever known were those who didn't have a dime unless they worked hard for it. But they kept their minds busy and their bodies active.

HANNAH'S ROCKING CHAIR
Hannah had a chair In the meeting-house. It was there as long ago As ever I know.

It was tall and varnished black With a straight and narrow back; Had short rockers, very thin, And on the wicker seat, tied in, A cushion square and flat.

One bench where women sat Facing the gallery, Was fashioned short for Hannah's chair; And when the great new house was built

Hannah was pained; shaken so She needed the motion to and fro. She couldn't have sat through a meeting at all If Friends hadn't made this place near the wall Close by the gallery door.

There was more Than an old woman's chair Creaking on the floor. There was something true and deep To sense, to gather and to keep Of kindness multiplied and part Of every labor, every heart.

More than a sermon could ever say Was said by that chair each meeting day

Of love's meaning Of life's way, SARA BUNDY PENCE "Quaker Bonnets"

Betrothal Is Revealed at A Tea

Presiding jointly at the affair were Mrs. Ronald Crookshank and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Clarence Crookshank, who entertained in the home of the former at 1020 Lxwell street.

When tea was served at the end of the afternoon of contract, news was told to the guests of the betrothal of Eleanor Crookshank, who is the daughter of Mrs. Clarence S. Crookshank of this city, and who will become the bride of James Whyte of Pomona at some unannounced date in the near future.

Mrs. Fred Whyte, the latter's mother, and Mrs. Crookshank, mother, was among those assisting in the party courtesies, with Miss Virginia Whyte, sister of Miss Crookshank's fiancé, also among the guests; and among others dropping in at the close of the afternoon to join the bridge players at tea were Miss Lida Crookshank, Mrs. A. J. Crookshank, Mrs. Conrad Crookshank, and Mrs. M. Burr Wellington of Santa Ana and Mrs. Henry Holden and Mrs. James Chase of Los Angeles.

Miss Crookshank and Mrs. Wellington presided at the pretty tea table, which was lovely in white and silver centered with sweet peas.

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

OPENING the new year with assurance from Editor Verne Beck at San Juan Capistrano that he doesn't mind, much, our stealing his "Sermons for Chilluns" every week, another'n is about to be offered.

In this offering, Editor Beck goes a bit sissy and talks Emily Post-ish, but he presents his advice in a manner usually foreign to etiquette discussions, so we'll give him his chance to improve your table manners. Here he is:

Little Chilluns, if you get invited to go to a party always have your hands and face washed first; always say thank you whether you mean it or not, and never, never, Chilluns, should you burp after eating or while you are. If you happen to, don't forget to remember to say excuse me, or heck, I couldn't help it.

Once upon a time there was a lady who was pretty nice, except for one thing, she always burped right at the table, Chilluns, or after the dinner was over and the folks were standing around criticizing the way other folks dressed.

This lady's husband didn't like it at all because his wife was always burping, Chilluns, and always er did another man who always went to the same parties, and knew the lady very, very well. He would carry chewing gum or little pills that would make one burp, and then all would be over. He knew the nice lady would look around for some gum or a pill, and she always would go to him, and he would always have some with her, so he went prepared for her. Always do the same, Chilluns, be prepared.

One time the nice lady and her nice husband and nice friend were at a very snooty dinner party, Chilluns, and her husband and her nice friend were afraid she would burp when the time wasn't just right. And their friend sat with his hand on his chewing gum and pills. Chilluns, it was strange, very strange, but not once during the dinner did the nice lady have to burp, and when they had picked their teeth and were standing around in the big room, talking and laughing, and telling stories about salesmen in the country, the nice man almost forgot about the lady and her burps.

Then all of a sudden, Chilluns, what did she do? Why, she burped a burp that sounded like somebody had torn the curtain clear in two. A man who was on the other side of the room said very sarcastic-like, well, I hear somebody left the dog at home but brought the burps. Wasn't that a silly thing to say, though?

Her nice husband was very quick on the trigger, and he said, oh, pardon me, just like as if he had done the burping. Then a few minutes later the very same nice lady did another loud burp, and their friend grabbed the chewing gum and said, oh pardon me, just as if he had done the burping. The nice friend was very quick to hand her some chewing gum and a pill, and she opened her mouth to take them both, and would you believe it, Chilluns, when her mouth was wide open what did she do but burp another one that made everybody turn around, because they thought somebody was pulling a board up out of the floor.

Well, sir, the husband and his nice friend were so surprised they didn't know what to do, and a man who was very strange to them, thought it was his turn to be a gentleman, so he said, oh, pardon me, have this one on me.

Well, sir, that made everybody just laugh and laugh until some of them had to sit down and laugh, and the poor lady and her husband ran home without stopping to get their hats, and the strange man who had said have this one on me got a job on the radio as a comedian for a mortuary, and the nice lady never went to dinner parties any more and finally she choked to death on chewing gum and pills and her children grew up to be sword swallowers.

So Chilluns, if you feel a burp coming on always leave the table and go to the shed, or if it comes, be sure to say oh, pardon me, because if somebody else says it for you it might not mean the same.

Pickpockets! Somebody swipes a six-ton engine from an oil derrick at Huntington Beach!

Those guys were shoplifters—they undoubtedly could lift an entire shop! But I'm wondering why they played around with such useless merchandise as an engine. Why not pick up the city hall or the postoffice?

I think I'd better make a public apology, here and now. A week or so ago I picked upon a poor guy who's flat in bed. I remarked all he could catch on fishing trips was seaweed.

Marshall Steen, the suffering seafarer, made unpleasant remarks about the editorial truthfulness and threatened to leave his temporary flat position to attack me. Later, friends told me the reason for his upset condition.

He, they claim, can't even catch seaweed!

Cottonseed goes to market nowadays in forms ranging from cooking oil to motion picture films.

RUSH PREPARATIONS FOR HUGE H.B. TRAILER CONVENTION

MODEL CAMP IS AIM OF CHAMBER

Coast-Wide Meeting of Tourists Slated for Early Spring

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—New as the New Year in design and convenience will be the trailer accommodations welcoming the hosts of house-cars expected to visit Huntington Beach, trailer city of the West, when the first Pacific Trailer convention is held in this seaside resort early this spring.

Model arrangements such as may be copied in camps all over the country are the aim of the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce, according to William Gallienne, executive secretary. "Trailer camps are new, as new as this new mode of travel that Babson says will make us a nation of nomads," Gallienne explained. "Huntington Beach sees the necessity of developing the ideal trailer camp, a camp that will satisfy all the needs of the trailer traveler, and be just as satisfactory in conjunction with the requirements of city life.

Utilities of the towns are experiencing in comfortably merging trailer and town life will be ironed out by Huntington Beach. The first Pacific Trailer convention will be held here, and the first ideal trailer camp will be designed here."

Coming for the convention, thousands of travelers will see the beach city for the first time—but not the last, Gallienne continued. Many of them will forsake their houses on wheels for homes in Huntington Beach, he said. To provide for them, as well as for the steadily increasing population from other sources, he said, the chamber of commerce has set itself to stimulate a home-building campaign within the city.

Federal Loan Office Planned

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—New offices for the Newport-Balboa Federal Savings and Loan association and the Lido Isle agency are to be erected at the entrance of Lido Isle adjoining the new Newport-Balboa highway overpass, it was announced today by Paul A. Palmer.

The permit, he said, would call for a $4000 structure to house the two organizations.

Scenes like this will be common in Huntington Beach this spring, when the first Pacific Coast trailer convention is opened for all trailer travelers. Members of the Tin Can Tourists' association, shown above, planned a mid-winter convention in Florida, and will be invited to take part in the huge beach celebration.

W. H. Gallienne, chamber of commerce secretary, is in charge of arrangements.

FEDERAL MEN CALLED TO FULLERTON

FULLERTON.—Federal officers today were investigating a strange case wherein an 11-year-old Fullerton girl obtained possession of $5301 in negotiable paper, apparently from postoffice boxes here.

Bill Davis, assistant theater manager, discovered the girl opening envelopes and investigating their contents, he told police. Included in the mail were several checks and other valuable papers. Police said the girl probably obtained the mail from postoffice boxes left ajar.

Harry Welsh, Fullerton Edison Company manager, lost four tickets to the Rose Bowl game last Friday when an envelope which contained the tickets was discovered opened and discarded in the Motor Transit office here.

Welsh went to the game regardless, armed with affidavits that he had purchased the tickets. It was thought by police the girl opened the envelope and then gave the tickets away. Holders of the missing pastebonds were refused admittance to the game, it was reported.

No action has been taken by local police on the case, as results of the federal investigation are awaited.

That Morning After Feeling!

The official cat of the house office building at Washington had a hard time of it on New Year's eve and about all he could do the morning after was sigh (in cat language). "Woe is me," Tom raged high, wide and handsome, but New Year's Day for him (as for many others) was just a lengthy parade of dreary hours. (Associated Press Photo)

SERPENT MYTH UNRAVELED Trachipterus Causes Concern

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Further horror has been added to the serpent stories by announcement by Scripps institute authorities that monsters of the deep occasionally seen hereabouts are named "Trachipterus ijmiae."

Trachipter, who occasionally travels under the alias of "Regalecus glesne" or "Regalecus russelli," is probably the reason for all sea-serpent stories. Percy Spencer Barnhart, curator of the biological collection at the institute at La Jolla has announced.

Trachipter, Barnhart has discovered, really is the King Herring. He is a long, ribbon-like fish which lives in the deep sea. He has a sinuous, snake-like motion while swimming, and often reaches a length of 20 to 30 feet.

Credence is given Barnhart's theory because of the fact that the herring is afflicted with a bony crest on his head, which probably accounts for stories of horned serpents rising from the sea to transfix and terrify ocean travelers. Trachipter swims much like a sea serpent is supposed to swim and his general appearance, as well as his name, are thought to be the foundation for all sea monster stories.

Dangerous Landings

By LOIS BULL
AUTHOR OF 'CAPTIVE GODDESS'

When Linda Marshall, American girl, is "lost over the Pacific" on a solo world flight, Tommy Drew, who is in love with her, has secret knowledge that her disappearance was deliberate and is connected in some way with her uncle, Copernicus Marshall, a scientist supposed to have been lost on an expedition in the Pacific shortly after the Spanish-American war. Secretly summoned by Linda, he goes out to Hong Kong, where he runs into an old friend, Jerry Mitchell, newspaperman. Together they go to an island off Hong Kong to see a mysterious scientist named Marshall, whom Tommy believes to be Linda's uncle. An old man posing as the scientist receives them, but Tommy feels sure he is an impostor.

CHAPTER VII
Why would anyone want to impersonate the scientist, Tommy wondered. What reason could there be for this seemingly childish subterfuge? Or was he completely mistaken? For the moment, he decided to play into the old man's hands. He would pretend to believe him to be C. Marshall.

A few minutes later, the three men were sitting on the veranda sipping chilled beer and talking of this and that—as friendly as three gentlemen could be who had just been lost for the first time but who had mutual friends. Tommy began to think that perhaps he had been mistaken.

But he did not see a figure that suddenly appeared in the doorway behind him, then as quickly withdrew. He only knew that the old man excused himself for a moment and that, inside the villa, could be heard a low conversation. A woman's voice!

Jerry winked. "A gay old bird at that!" Tommy's answer was forestalled by the old man's return. "Would you like a look at my laboratory? It's over in the rear wing. I've got to look in on an experiment I have going. Like to come along?"

Tommy and Jerry were led along corridors toward a wing separated from the rest of the house by a colonnade edging a patio. Tommy studied their host. The old man's skin was wrinkled and weathered; he had the complexion of a man who had spent a large part of his life in the open—perhaps at sea. His eyes had that "sea squint."

Yet, men who spent long hours over microscopes and test tubes had a similar look about the eyes. But their skins, as a rule, were white and pasty. Also, this man's gait seemed to be that of a man used to walking decks.

His age? Well, if he were C. Marshall—and Tommy was sure that C. Marshall and Copernicus Marshall were one and the same man—how old should he be? Tommy did some quick calculation. The Spanish-American war had been 37 years ago. If Marshall had been around 30 or 35 when he went to war, he would now be from 67 to 72 years old. This man looked younger than that, despite his wrinkles. And Marshall might have been nearer 40 when he went to war, which would make him about 75 now.

As the old man flung open the doors to the laboratory, he turned to Jerry. "This visit is to be in confidence, you realize. I hope you will

YACHT RACES CONCLUDED AT PORT

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Sunshine and sailing featured the week-end on Newport bay where the concluding races of the Christmas regatta were held and supplied a Sunday of thrills—and one spill.

K. L. Carver tripped on a rope on the deck of his R-sloop "Ma-chree" as the 40-footer was skimming into the home stretch, and tumbled overboard.

Star boats and R boats and interclass dinghies dotted the brilliant waters of the bay, and billowing spinners broken out in the light air added to the picture of California a-yachting in mid-winter.

Expectations of seeing Commodore William A. Bartholomae, Jr., try out his new 8-meter racing sloop were not gratified. The chief flag officer of the Newport Harbor Yacht club competed with his 6-meter "Mustery," the boat that flew the Stars and Stripes at the Olympic games in Europe.

Tustin Club Plans Election

Tustin.—Election of officers will feature a meeting of the T. N. R. P. club at 6 o'clock this evening in the social hall of the Presbyterian church, it was announced today. The election was postponed because of stormy weather.

theory because of the fact that the herring is afflicted with a bony crest on his head, which probably accounts for stories of horned serpents rising from the sea to transfix and terrify ocean travelers. Trachipter swims much like a sea serpent is supposed to swim and his general appearance, as well as his name, are thought to be the foundation for all sea monster stories.

Specimens of the huge herring have been captured at Newport and at Catalina Island, after they were forced up from the depths by submarine disturbances. The body is fragile, resembling jelly, and its bones are light and thin.

Afghan of Crochet is Warm and Gay

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

It's Economy to Use Wool Scraps for This

PATTERN 5716

A Battalion of Butterflies—their wings spread to keep you warm, make this crocheted afghan a thing of unusual beauty. What more conducive to "forty winks" than a warm coverlet, crocheted of diamond-shaped medallions, 7 1/2 x 11 inches. Each butterfly is different by reason of vari-colored odds and ends of wool. You'll find this the most glorious sort of pick-up work, just simple crochet and chain stitch, with the butterfly's body in puff stitch. In pattern 5716 you will find directions for making the afghan; an illustration of it and of the stitches used; material requirements; color suggestions.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Journal, Household Arts Dept., 117 East Fifth Street, Santa Ana, Calif. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and Pattern Number.

A Law-Abiding Sheriff

THERE'LL be no "bum" blockade by the County of Los Angeles this winter. Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz is authority for that statement.

The sheriff says his investigators found no alarming influx of transients and adds that all travelers have a constitutional right to enter the county.

This attitude is a pleasant contrast with that of Police Chief James Davis of Los Angeles who organized a vagrancy drive at the outskirts of the city last fall after abandoning attempts to police all of California's lengthy border.

Sheriff Biscailuz realizes what every sensible person must know—that California's transient problem cannot be solved by scrapping the Constitution.

And it is a very real problem. Thousands of impoverished farmers and farm workers from the South and Midwest are coming here, despite all that is being done for them by federal relief agencies in their own states.

The influx apparently is the price which California has to pay for being favored territory—A Land of Promise which has beckoned to Easterners for years.

We must do our best to help these arrivals get a new start after they land here. That is the human and the decent thing to do.

Meeting them at the border with a strong-arm squad is inhuman and un-American.

Helping them to get or make work in California is far better.

County Democrats plan a "Victory Dinner" to help pay off the campaign deficit. The Republicans may hold a dinner for the same purpose if they can rent a telephone booth to meet in.

Should Uncle Sam Run the Ships?

THE WATERFRONT strike is beginning to pinch California commerce quite seriously. If it lasts much longer, the damage caused may take months to repair.

Hopes of both sides for an early settlement apparently have failed, as strikers and the shipowners are keeping a stiff front. They are mighty hard-headed.

And the intervention of the federal government for purposes of arbitration has been unsuccessful.

In face of the deadlock, there is one suggestion for protecting the public's rights in the matter which seems to be finding favor.

That is for the federal government to step in and operate the ships while the owners and workers are settling their dispute.

Under this arrangement the major parties in the strike can fight until they grow long white beards like Rip Van Winkle—and it won't hurt anyone else.

After all, the interests of the general public are most important. Pacific coast commerce, as a whole, compares in size to the maritime groups like a jumbo elephant does to a flea. And a flea has no business holding up an elephant upon whom almost everybody in some degree or another—whether directly or not—depends for a living.

There seems to be a lot of merit in the idea that Uncle Sam step in and run the ships during the strike.

We hope President Roosevelt gives serious thought to the plan. He apparently is the only man who can start commerce moving again on the waterfront.

Now You Tell One department: "Gee, I'm glad to go back to school today after the vacation," said little Johnny.

Skeleton in Humanity's Closet

ONE of the oldest taboos of modern civilization—the suppression of public discussion or action against the so-called social diseases—may be broken as the result of a recent nation-wide newspaper poll.

This poll showed that 90 per cent of the people questioned favored a government bureau to distribute information concerning these diseases and that 85 per cent wanted the government to establish clinics to treat victims. Most hopeful, indeed.

If the truth were known, these diseases probably have caused more misery and tragedy than all the wars and pestilences of the past.

Their treatment has been left to a large extent in the hands of unethical charlatans and quacks. It is plain that not much headway can be made against them under these conditions.

Tuberculosis, typhoid, smallpox and other plagues have been partly vanquished by a public declaration of war, based on full knowledge imparted by expert authorities.

This new determination to fight a hidden and merciless enemy is a good sign. Let's hope it grows.

That South American peace conference ended just in time for us to enter the naval race.

Value of Prayer

"MORE things are wrought by prayer than the world dreams of. What are men better than sheep or goats, that nourish a blind life within the brain, if knowing God, they lift no hands of prayer both for themselves and those who call them friends?"

These lines were written by Tennyson. The English poet knew the practical value of frequent communion with the great spiritual forces beyond our knowledge.

His lines are appropriate as we enter the Week of Prayer, during which daily services have been arranged at local churches by the Santa Ana Ministerial association.

An earnest and brief prayer from deep in the heart often drives away troubles and perplexity. Many people have found this so.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: M. and I tarried passing the Rockefeller church in the car last sun down to hearken to the carillon. And looking around saw dozens of halted cars. When the chimes died away all moved off. Hurry-uppers snaggled on sentiment.

Too, the vesperal hour strollers on the drive who stand at the parapet gazing down into the rippling Hudson. Or rather the Frenchman who stands bemused by the Seine. Some of the most enduring paintings, poems and books have been handed to posterity by river gazers.

We ticked off four friends brought to light recently in minor falls. Or rather missteps. One out of a taxi, another off a curb and both with fractured hips. Two others in bathtub topples. Ribs broken. Gladstone once dislocated a vertebra sneezing and Barnum broke his nose slapping at a fly.

In a Dayton, O., editorial room one busy day a reporter was asked to take a story over the phone. He reached casually for the receiver, his arm halted in mid-air, there was a cry of pain and he turned the white of paper. He had thrown his shoulder out of socket.

Montaigne has for a "long last" been a favorite philosopher. I learned of him from a night clerk named Gus in a sporty Cincinnati hotel. Gus was homesick, his hair matted and glossy but in dull hours of night read his Montaigne. In a translation by Jacob Seftin, Montaigne shows to even a greater advantage. It kept me up long after the other night. Montaigne does not cater to the anathora and curiosa. His best writing and clearest reasoning came when in the grip of a torturous and to medical science incurable malady. Not once does he howl to despair, hate or cynicism. The writing is a love letter to a most talented, lovable craftsman, Don Marquis, gravely ill at Forest Hills, L. I.

A fellow who used to work with me on the Cincinnati Post has written "The Quiet Lodger of Irving Place." The story of the frustrated O. Henry by William Wash Williams, as a reporter on the World, was assigned to run O. Henry down after some crack stories had been brought in by him, paid for. The writer had left no address. Williams found him living in the obscure, he always sought and formed a friendship that lasted until the final episode, when he sighed, mumbled for light, because, "I do not want to go home in the dark."

Long ago I thumbs downed on literary teas. And I notice in one of the book columns John Farrar has stopped tossing them. At his last he invited 50 people and 150 showed up! When Walter Chrysler, jr., gives a tea he has two efficient huskies at the entrance to check arrivals' names with the official list. Dog lovers will warm to King Edward's final thought for his frisky Carni which he took into exile. Is his name, by the way, is "Slipper." The late Will Geese had one from the same mother, named Gille, bought in Biarritz.

On several different nights after the theater M. and I have enjoyed a patrol of the hectic West 52d street block, now almost solidly lined with a hedge-hedge of cafes. Here the white tie crowd arrives feverishly for a fling. The mood rollicking. The froth of amiable naughtiness. Fellows with other fellows' wives. Now and then a head waiter, as though no longer able to stand the fun, saunters to the curb edge hunched and to affix his lungs with what fresh air the monoxide of a hundred taxis has not tainted. Around 1 a. m. couples begin to move, weaving from one canteen to another until dawn.

Patrons of the Capitol theater will long continue to miss the handsome, silver-haired J. K. Emmett, II, the manager, usually about the lobby. He was a pleasant smile along a smileless street. The son of a famous actor, he was a handsome leading man of his time.

I have received a copy of "Meet Martha Deane" by Mary Margaret McBride, with this autographical bio: "For O. O. M. whose help and encouragement, as well as example, have inspired me all my writing years." Miss McBride is a shy young lady from tiny Paris, Mo., who came to the big city to become the most popular informal talker the radio has ever known, under the pseudonym of Martha Deane.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON. — The President's strategy for this session of congress is simple but canny.

He will first go to bat on the least controversial issues; then, his hand strengthened by the momentum and prestige gained from anticipated decisive victories on these questions, he will swing into those where the going will be heavy.

The nation is overwhelmed for peace, for keeping aloof from Europe's boiling caldron of war. Also the supreme court ruled in its decision upholding the 1935 Neutrality act that under the constitution the President has far-reaching powers in dealing with foreign affairs.

So, taking advantage of favorable public sentiment, the court's pronouncement and the explosive Spanish situation, the President will start the legislative ball rolling by pressing for a new neutrality law giving him extensive discretionary powers to impose embargoes.

He tried to get such a bill through in 1935 and again last year. But congressional hostility, particularly in the senate, was too powerful for him.

The legislators balked at giving the executive discretionary scope in so dangerous a problem. They insisted that the ban on shipments of arms and munitions to belligerents be made mandatory. And they had their way—despite strenuous objections from Roosevelt and furious undercover lobbying by the state department.

The Spanish conflict and the recent episode of the New Jersey arms dealer securing a license to export airplane engines have modified congressional opinion.

There is now a willingness to give the President a certain amount of discretion over commodities. Such as foodstuffs. This concession is an important gain for Roosevelt, who will use it to try to get complete discretionary power.

RELIEF

Next on his program are the deficit, emergency appropriation and wage and hour legislation.

These subjects will come up in separate bills, but they will be tied together as inter-related problems. Congress will be told that there can be no hope of a solution of unemployment as long as employers are free to pay sweat-shop wages and work labor for sweat-shop hours.

On the surface the President will appear to be trying to hold down the deficit by a grant to around $500,000,000. But he will not be too insistent on that figure. If the liberals can boost it to the $750,000,000 they demand, he will accept the increase.

WAGE AND HOUR BILL

The bill to establish a minimum wage and maximum hour law will be unrelated to plans or proposals for a new NRA.

Any NRA legislation may come later in the session. If it does it will deal solely with business and trade practices. Labor questions will not be included in the measure, as they were in the old NRA act.

The President has definitely decided that wage and hour control should not be offered as a trading sop to industry to get it to agree to bargain collectively with labor, as was the case in the NRA. These questions, he now holds, are separate and distinct and must be dealt with.

The wage and hour bill to be offered will be modeled after the New York state minimum wage law. This law set up no rigid standards. Instead it empowered an agency to fix them for individual industries. The act was held unconstitutional last spring by the supreme court, on the ground that it contravened state powers.

Administrators admit frankly that they do not know whether a federal law of this kind would be held legal. But the President is prepared to raise the issue. Then, should the court hold the law unconstitutional he would be in a strategic position to go to the country on the direct question of curbing the court's power.

TAX REVISION

Probably the most controversial of the heavy-going issues will be the question of tax legislation.

There is a tremendous drive, both in and out of the administration, for repeal of the capital gains tax. This is the provision that taxes profits made from the sale of securities.

Its repeal is being strenuously advocated by holders of stocks who bought them during the depression years when they were low, by brokers and inside the administration, by the treasury, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Marriner Eccles, who advocated the enactment of that tax, is vigorously opposed to its elimination.

The President, so far, has made no decision on the question. But he is under strong pressure to agree to repeal.

Likewise, he is being vigorously pressed to revise the corporation surplus tax so that firms in debt could deduct from their taxable profits the sums they pay on their obligations.

SMALL VOICE

The voice of Delaware will be a still, small voice in the senate this session. Republican Senator John Townsend is one of the senate mutes. Senator Dan Hastings, who barked truculently at the heels of the New Deal, is replaced by Democrat James H. Hughes, who will have little to say, critical or otherwise.

Hughes is a good-natured older from Dover who is better grounded in story telling than in political economy. Born 70 years ago on a Kent county farm, he has passed all his life on the sandy peninsula of the "Eastern Shore." He knows intimately the Negro-and-mule agronomy of that section, where the buzzards fly low over the truck patches. But he knows little of the national scene, and he will not try to step forth as an actor in it.

Hughes owes his election to the strength of Roosevelt and to a split in the opposition camp. Independent Republicans revolted against "duPont rule," and sided with the Democrats.

LATIN-AMERICAN FRIENDLINESS

To the Editor: You have showed your paper to be truly great, judging from your editorial on "Mexico, Land of Freedom," appearing in the Dec. 30 issue, for not only have you been magnanimous enough to give credit where credit is due, but, more important, you have set an example which other papers might well follow, viz., of letting the American public know some of the good things concerning their brother nations to the south.

Too long has the American press been eager to play up only the sensational side of the news relating to Latin America; your new policy is in harmonious accord with our whole new Pan-Americanism. For a fact, All President Roosevelt's fine intentions and work will amount to little if the newspapers of the nations of the western hemisphere do not make a genuine and determined effort to educate their readers so that they may truly understand the people of other American nations; only thus can real friendship be brought about.

And conditions are so favorable right now for such actions that we all hope the other editors of the other newspapers of America will be foresighted and wise enough to follow your most valuable example—and you, may you see fit to continue your work.

The United States bureau of standards has devised a machine which tests the wearing power of any fabric. The amount of force necessary to tear the goods is measured. With this and other tests, workers hope to set up standards of good fabrics, so that purchasers may know how much wear they may expect from any given dress, suit, or any wearable merchandise.

One Man's Opinion

By X REPORTER

"Before the election," my friend confessed, "I firmly and sincerely believed that the re-election of President Roosevelt would be a tremendous national tragedy."

"On election night, as the returns came in, I thought that the United States of America had finally come to inglorious end."

"My wife—who believed the same as I—and myself moped around for several days waiting for and dreading some dire thing that we could not analyze, could not even picture. Yet we expected it."

"Then one evening as we were driving mopeily homeward, my wife exclaimed: 'What's the matter with us? We'd better snap out of it. Just because we were on the losing side of a national election we act as if the world were coming to an end.'"

"We'd better admit that we took a darn good licking, and try to like it. And while we're admitting we'd better admit, for the good of our souls, that people like us have opposed social change and therefore social progress since long before America was discovered."

"She startled me," my friend said. "At first I was angry, but now I see the common sense behind what she said. America is going ahead on a pretty fairly sound path, and we've made up our minds to go along."

There is some evidence that a similar change in thinking is having quite a wide vogue over the nation. And that's good.

The reason I relate this little confession, though, is to prove what I consider to be a fundamental fact rather than for any reason even remotely related to politics.

Beliefs, especially political beliefs, can become so acute and so seemingly real that they will warp a man clear away from his principles. There danger lies.

My friend of course wanted America, his country, to proceed on her course to a wonderful destiny. That was the principle involved.

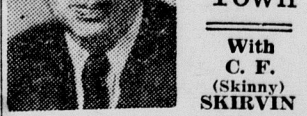

But he had built in his mind a fixed method by which—and only by which—that could be accomplished. Those were his beliefs.

Beliefs have a way of divorcing themselves entirely, when they become strong enough, from reason and from principle.

And when that happens man, although he continues to walk upright, ceases temporarily to be an intelligent being.

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town
With C. F. SKIRVIN

I never read about the airplane achievements of Howard Hughes but what my memory takes me back to his granddaddy, Judge Felix T. Hughes, of Keokuk, Iowa, who was a brilliant attorney and a steadfast friend. Much of the Hughes fortune now going into Howard's airplane developments came from inventions cogitated around an old bread board in the granddaddy's kitchen. They laid the foundation for Howard's father's wealth, made at Houston, Texas, from oil well equipment. Young Hughes' record breaking flight was made at the Santa Ana airport of Eddie Martin.

Met a business man last Saturday who deliberately remained away from the bank until 10 o'clock. Thought it was Monday. That's what the New Year can do to your memory.

A. B. Rousseau stops to wish me a Happy New Year and expresses the hope that I make more money than in 1936. The intent of that felicitation is grand, but A. B. hasn't seen the balance sheet so he does not know how little I made. After he got away it occurred to me that I should have asked him to amend the well wishes and make it read "much more money" than in 1936.

Remember that checks and calendars should read 1937. You won't have a Happy New Year without them. My office location is entirely surrounded by calendars. I might get my work finished quicker if some one removed a few of them.

Santa Ana friends who celebrated New Years in Los Angeles report a wild and hilarious welcome to the kid with the three-cornered pants. From the Edward Bellamy standpoint this item goes back to 1905-1913, when Newton W. Gilbert was judge of the Court of First Instance in the Philippines, later Philippine commissioner and afterward vice-governor. Newt is the godfather of the longest bridge in the Philippines. It is over the Laing River. It was erected in 1914, the year following Mr. Gilbert's retirement as vice-governor, and in his honor. It is called the "Gilbert Bridge." He has never seen it, although he has circumnavigated the globe several times since its construction. By the way, Newt, do you remember Warren Ickis, who was judge advocate? Mr. Gilbert is now a Santa Ana resident.
